Dockside gambling

'Casinogate' leaks draft copy

BY TRACI BONNEY
Some dockside gambling proponents were claiming Tuesday that a conspiracy has formed between gaming opponents and unnamed others to prevent developments from starting locally.

Allyson Keller said during the public forum that she thinks a conspiracy has formed between gaming opponents and unnamed others to prevent developments from starting locally.

Gaming consultant Paul Buckhurst sent the council copies last week of his recommendations of two gambling development sites, the Bay Cove Harbour and Mardi Gras Casino Bay bridge locations. At the council's Monday workshop meeting, several gaming opponents apparently had copies of the draft.

Mayor Edward Favre said the report had not been made public yet. "Unfortunately, the report was released," he said. "We had a leak — a Casinogate."

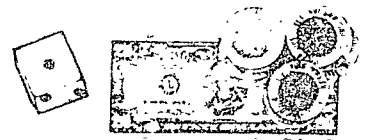

Favre stressed at Tuesday's meeting that the recommendations were preliminary. He read a copy of a letter Buckhurst telefaxed earlier that day, which stated: "It is important to stress that the recommendations have been prepared as a draft document, and as noted in my letter dated November 14, we will be revising the material to reflect comments from council members, Jules Lagarde, (City zoning project manager) and others over the next week or so."

Lagarde urges council to adopt Life Safety Codes

BY TRACI BONNEY
Bay St. Louis zoning project manager Jules Lagarde recommended to the city council at a Monday workshop that the city adopt a set of National Fire Protection Association safety codes.

Lagarde reviewed with the council some of the provisions of the Southern Standard Building Code, which the city uses, as they will pertain to dockside gambling developments. He then highlighted the NFPA 101 Life Safety Code and pointed out some of the areas in which it can complement or even supersede, the SSBC provisions.

"One set of regulations (the SSBC) deals in wood and brick and stone, while the other (NFPA) deals more in safety matters," he said in explaining his recommendations.

He started by stating a few terms as defined in the SSBC and NFPA. One of those terms deals with "vessels," which has two definitions: boats, or buildings on boats.

Lagarde concentrated on the second definition, since he said it would be the one that will concern the city the most.

He also briefly mentioned the American Disabilities Act, effective January 26, 1992, which will effect not only dockside developments, but all public and commercial establishments. Lagarde said full compliance to the act will have to be in place by June 26 of that year.

"Basically it says you can't discriminate on a commercial or public property."

"Doorknobs essentially will cease to exist. All doorknobs will have to become lever handles."

He touched on other changes that will have to occur in already existing buildings, then commented, "This law has added a whole bunch of criteria that previous to January 26

City council pummelled with petitions

BY TRACI BONNEY
The Bay St. Louis city council meeting Tuesday attracted a record crowd of dockside gambling proponents and more than 3,000 signatures' worth of petitions.

After moving the meeting to Bay Catholic Elementary's cafeteria to provide seating for those present, the council conducted regular business and held its public forum. All of those who spoke were gaming proponents and most sported pink badges reading: "Jobs Now!"

Donald Saucier, Hancock County Tourism and Gaming Association vice president, presented the council with petitions containing more than 1,000 signatures from residents in favor of gaming developments at the Bay bridge and downtown.

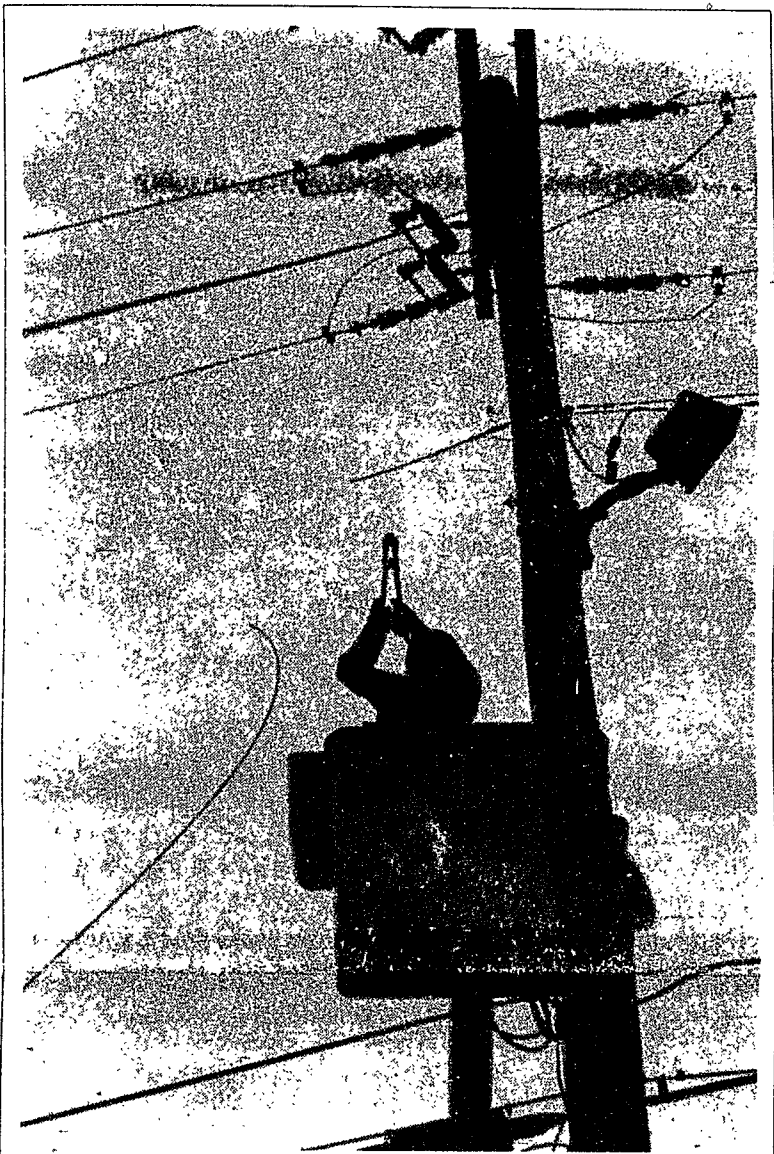

Mardi Gras Casino Corp. representative Debby Tyner also gave the council a set of petitions, these compiled of names, addresses and phone numbers of more than 2,000 people throughout the county who are in favor of the Bay bridge and downtown developments. "And more (signatures) are coming in," she told them as she put the large stack of yellow sheets on the council table.

Tyner said she and other Mardi Gras officials spent the last two weekends in Hancock County shopping areas conducting their petition/poll. She stated that many of those approached were angry that the jobs promised by Mardi Gras Casino are not yet available.

She added, "Seventeen out of every 20 people we approached signed these petitions."

Mardi Gras's proposed Bay bridge development has been a source of much controversy. Those opposed to downtown dockside gambling operations contend that the development will endanger the Hwy. 90 bridge and destroy the area's historical value, while those favoring the development maintain that it will draw people into the Old Town area and boost the local economy by bringing in tourists.

Plans for the development — originally designed to include a 300-room hotel and three barges for floating casino and restaurant operations — currently include a 660-car parking lot on the inland side of North Beach Blvd., a 24-foot-wide wooden pier, and two barges for a 36,000-square-foot casino with light-fare restaurant.

Board gives go-ahead to Texas Flat project

BY TRACI BONNEY

The board of supervisors voted Monday to accept $5 million in funds for the improvement of Texas Flat Road.

In July, the state Department of Economic and Community Development committed $5 million to Hancock County for the improvement of Texas Flat Road from Hwy. 603 to Hwy. 607. The county's proposed project had a price tag of $6.2 million, so 2.9 miles of the road were deleted from the project.

The state agreed with this, on the conditions that the county provide $500,000 for the current project and that the county pledge the funds to complete the other 2.9 miles within five years after the initial project is finished and accepted.

According to county engineer Larry Seal, the funds pledged may come from the county's state aid allotment, which is the source of the $500,000 for the present phase of the project.

In addition, NASA has earmarked funds to build another entrance to the Stennis Space Center near the intersection of Hwy. 607 and Texas Flat Road. This will give direct access from the space center to Stennis Airport.

Funds allocated for county buses

BY JACQUI COCHRAN

County school board members approved the transfer of $110,000 in funds Monday for the purchase of five new school buses.

The five new buses, costing approximately $165,000, will be paid in part by revenues generated from timber sales and 16th Section land leases.

The $110,000 will be moved from the 16th Section Interest

Fund to the District Maintenance Fund.

In another financial move, the board approved the payment of $39,285 from the District Maintenance Fund to the 16th Section Principle Fund.

The $39,285 is the first of twenty payments the district will be making to the principle fund for repayment of a

Pearlington man claims well supply tainted with benzene

BY TRACI BONNEY

Harlan G. "Boogie" Dean of Pearlington is crying foul — foul water.

Dean appealed to the board of supervisors Monday for assistance in closing what he claims is an unauthorized landfill that has reportedly tainted his well water with benzene and other carcinogens. The board passed a resolution asking the state to shut down the dump at the end of Dean Road off Hwy. 90.

Dean told the supervisors that neighbor Charles W. McCarty Sr. is operating an unauthorized landfill that has taken in solid waste from the Port Bienville Industrial Park and other hazardous waste materials.

McCarty denied that he has dumped any hazardous materials, and claimed his dump has nothing to do with Dean's drinking water.

Dean said he asked the Bureau of Pollution Control in September to check the water in his 120-foot-deep well. The bureau's report showed a higher-than-acceptable level of benzene in the water sample taken, he stated.

While the BPC report showed 9.6 parts of benzene per billion parts water (safe levels may not exceed 5.0 parts per billion), a state bureau spokesman said there is a possibility that a mistake at a state laboratory showed benzene contaminants where there are none.

The analysis also showed other chemicals, but not at unsafe levels. State officials have not yet determined the source of the water contamination.

Dean said the state bureau also planned to analyze soil samples from his property. The results from those tests should be ready in two to three weeks.

Meanwhile, Dean is upset with the situation.

"The man is my neighbor. I tried to get around it, not to have any falling out with him. "I'm trying to sell my property. If you've got poisoned water, you can't give it away."

McCarty maintains he is innocent of any wrongdoing. "I just wish they'd leave me alone. I'm just trying to make an honest living."

County designates Ponder coordinator

BY JACQUI COCHRAN

Hancock County school district appointed Sherry Ponder Monday as special education Section 504 coordinator.

Ponder, the present special education program developer for both Hancock County and Bay-Waveland School Districts, explained the job designation as a legal formality.

She said, Section 504 of the Civil Rights Act requires specific conditions to be met to provide accessibility to facilities for all handicapped and special education students.

"There is a check list requiring ramps and water fountains, parking areas, restroom facilities, etc. The coordinator's job will be to insure no child is being denied access to facilities at the schools."

Ponder added that though this is the first time Hancock will have a person actually designated as coordinator for Section 504, the district has taken active measures in the past to assure its facilities meet with federal guidelines.

The board also approved the appointment of Walley Fairley as local survey committee (LSC) chairman and department head for special education at the junior/senior high school.

As LSC chairman, Fairley will guide the committee through which special education referrals are evaluated.

In other business the board approved:

—low quote of $1,100 for a differential rear end for a Chevrolet school bus from H-D Clutch;

—lowest bids on line items for vocational supplies and equipment;

—and, a request to release a student from the district to attend school in another district for the 1992-93.

would not be needed."

He added, in answer to a question from the mayor, that the act is fully retroactive. City Hall and other buildings will not be "grandfathered" in on historical or any other basis and must be modified to comply with the disabilities act.

Returning to the SSBC, Lagarde said those items he planned to highlight deal mostly with egress, or how to leave a building in the event of a fire or other emergency.

The SSBC specifies: distances from the far corner of a room to the exit and from the exit to the public way (road or other public traffic area); the occupancy load of a room, floor or building; exit space allowed per occupant; placement and space amount for exits; and other such details.

Lagarde said that while the SSBC is specific, the LSC is even more so. It has similar egress requirements, but adds a definition for an "area of refuge," a space protected from fire that occupants can evacuate to from an upper floor of a building.

The LSC also addresses requirements for ventilation systems and gives regulations for "special structures," including piers. The pier regulations are of particular pertinence to the city and potential developers, Lagarde said, because the rules dictate how a pier must be constructed in order to be considered a safe means of egress from a vessel.

The council did not act on Lagarde's recommendation, but plans to do so in the near future at a regular meeting.

$436,000 loan used towards the construction of the junior/senior high school.

According to district bookkeeper Lynel Ncaise, the 16th Section Principle Fund is used as a loaning fund. By law the monies can not be spent, but can be borrowed and paid back with four-percent interest. Fund usage is limited to major building projects and/or school bus purchases. The fund itself is generated from 16th Section Land royalties, such as mineral and oil sales.

The board also approved the transfer of $17,460 from the 16th Section Principle Fund to the 16th Section Interest Fund. Ncaise said, the $17,460 is the four-percent interest included in the loan repayment, which must be separated from the principle fund monies.

"QUOTABLE QUOTES"

By Ellis C. Cuevas

On Friday morning, the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce's Morning Edition will be held at 7:30 a.m. at the Mississippi Power Company's Conference Room.

This month's topic will be A View of '92 with guest speakers, Jeff Taylor, planning manager of South Mississippi Planning and Development District (SMPDD); Sue Chamberlain, senior planner of SMPDD; and Mike Cuevas, project manager, Main Street Program, Bay St. Louis.

It sounds like this is going to be a very interesting program and I am hoping there will be a large number of persons in attendance for this very important Morning Edition.

The sponsor will be the City of Bay St. Louis.

To RSVP, call the chamber's office today at 467-9048.

Items to be discussed include the Sand Beach Master Plan - Plans for 1992; Hancock County Comprehensive Plan - "Into the 21st Century;" and Bay St. Louis, "Right in the Heart of Things."

FROM THE SENATE

By Senator Trent Lott

The great giveaway

I am deeply disturbed over an Armed Services Conference agreement which would take $1 billion out of Defense and give it to the Soviet Union.

At a time when our own military is being shrunk by 25 percent, when we don't know who is in charge of the Soviet nuclear trigger, and when we have a larger-than-life budget deficit, it doesn't make sense to give a billion dollars to the Soviets.

Furthermore, this agreement was presented to the Armed Services Committee, of which I am a member, through the back door. Committee Chairman Senator Sam Nunn and Representative Les Aspin negotiated this thing, brought it into the Committee and after we had agreed to hold the conference vote open on it until we could review it, we were told the next morning it's time to vote.

The proposal is discretionary, but I have to be honest, I don't want the Administration to have the discretion to be able to take a billion dollars from Defense and spend it on humanitarian aid or to retrain Soviet military officers.

We have people in our own country who are unemployed and need retraining. Taking a billion away is the same as taking away jobs from Americans.

I'm sensitive to the problems in the Soviet Union and to human suffering. I don't want starvation and outright revolution in the Soviet Union, but this is not the right way to do it.

I think it is a trap for the President. If he uses it, members of Congress are going to say, "See, the President is using Defense money to help the Soviet Union, so why don't we use Defense money for other programs." If he does not use it and there's a disaster over there, then he'll be challenged by folks saying, "See, look what happened."

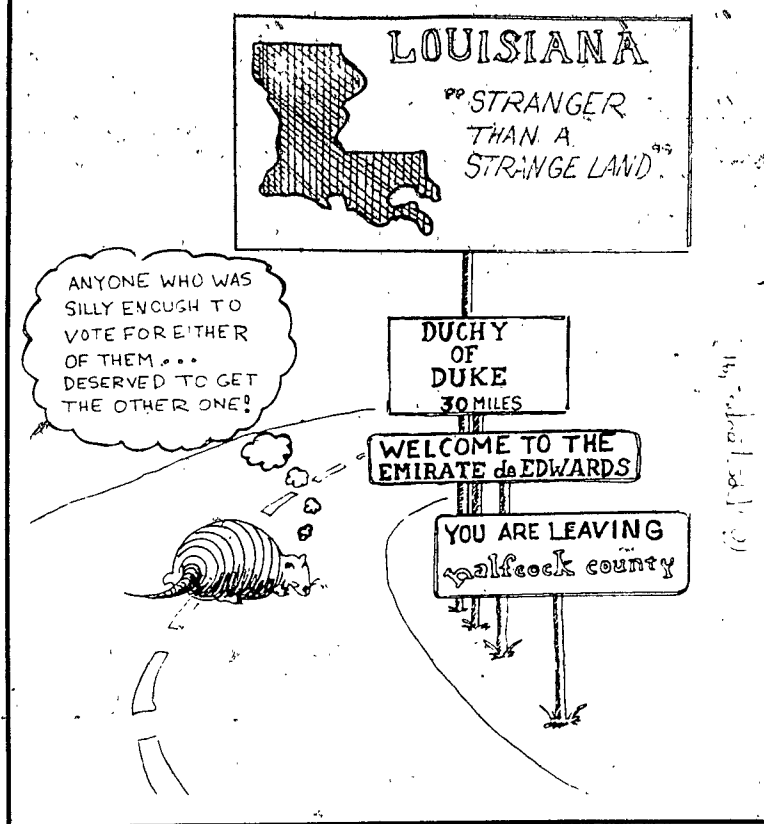

I am not opposed to looking at the Department of Defense being involved in technical assistance. When the Soviets are ready to dismantle their nuclear plants and their weapons, if they don't have the technical capability to do so, if they cease construction and massive production of nuclear weapons and facilities, yes, then of course we should help. But, the Soviets are not disarming and they are not spending their defense money on potatoes for their own people either.

I met with nuclear officials from the Soviet Union in October and they said they don't know how many tactical nuclear weapons they have within 5,000. Now come on. Are we going to give a billion dollars to them? I don't think we should.

This is just the wrong thing to do, the wrong signal to give and the wrong time to try. I will do everything I can to defeat this agreement and the manner in which it was presented.

WASHINGTON REPORT

By Senator Thad Cochran

Cochran says Older Americans Act benefits elderly

U.S. Senator Thad Cochran said the passage of the Older Americans Act Amendments by the U.S. Senate will benefit the nation's elderly.

The Senate approved a $1.7 billion bill to reauthorize a wide range of federal health care, nutrition and social programs for millions of older Americans late Tuesday.

Cochran, senior member of the Senate Aging Subcommittee, said information gathered at hearings in Washington and across the country had given the Senate good ideas for improving these programs.

"Field hearings are an excellent way to obtain information on the real problems and issues facing older Americans, and on whether the programs are operating as effectively as Congress intended," he said. Cochran chaired subcommittee hearings in Mississippi earlier this year.

The largest funding increase authorized in the bill was in direct response to testimony of witnesses who provided insights based on their personal, day-to-day experiences in caring for older relatives who would otherwise have been placed in institutions, Cochran said.

"The testimony brought into focus the need to better target the resources of the Act to those who are most in need," he said. The Mississippi senator authored the bill's provision to increase funds for services for the frail elderly.

"It has been estimated that as much as 80 percent of all long-term care may be provided in this manner by informal, unpaid care-givers," Cochran told his colleagues during final debate on the legislation.

The measure also includes new support services for care-givers who care for frail elderly family members at home. The new services include training, counseling, technical assistance and information on how to obtain respite services.

Elderly should take precautions for cold weather

With cold winter weather just around the corner, elderly Mississippians are urged to take steps to avoid becoming victims of hypothermia.

"Cold weather can be extremely dangerous for older adults unless proper safeguards are taken," said Billie Marshall, director of the Mississippi Department of Human Services' Division of Aging and Adult Services.

Hypothermia results when body temperature falls so much that it causes serious health problems, even death. "Older persons are more susceptible to hypothermia because of their bodies' decreasing ability to regulate responses to changing temperatures," Marshall said. "Some victims say they don't even feel very cold."

Senior citizens living in poorly heated homes are at particular risk of suffering hypothermia. Certain medical conditions, such as arthritis, diabetes and head injuries, increase the risk because these conditions may interfere with the body's ability to regulate responses to changing temperatures.

Symptoms of hypothermia include confusion, difficulty in speaking, slow breathing, shivering, a puffy face, cool or cold skin and stiff muscles.

"If you think someone has this condition, call for medical assistance immediately, and keep the victim warm with a blanket or extra clothes until assistance arrives," Marshall said. "Be especially careful to keep the head covered and treat the victim gently to minimize shock to the heart."

Aging and Adult Services recommends these additional safety tips to reduce the risk of hypothermia among the elderly:

—Wear several layers of loose, warm clothing inside and outside and a hat and scarf because body heat is quickly lost from the head and neck.

—Use an electric blanket or extra blankets, wear warm socks at bedtime and keep shades or curtains closed to keep rooms warmer at night.

—Maintain a temperature of about 70 degrees in rooms where the most time is spent, and close off unused rooms.

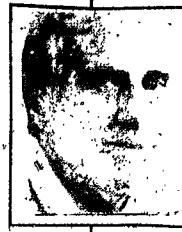

—Engage in moderate exercise and maintain a proper diet to produce body heat.

—Stock a variety of canned goods and other foods for days when it's too cold to go outside.

—Keep in touch with family, friends and neighbors to ensure that any health problems are known.

In the event of extreme cold-weather emergencies in Mississippi, Area Agencies on Aging will open shelters for the elderly.

For information on hypothermia or any other subject relating to the elderly, contact the toll-free Department of Human Services' access line, 1-800-345-6347.

EYES ON MISSISSIPPI

Fordice won't do half bad judging by his transition team

One mistake Gov.-elect Kirk Fordice is not going to make that his predecessor, Ray Mabus, made: To start off his administration without any "gray heads" around to provide a corporate memory of what the job of governor entails.

Fordice has brought back from "retirement" Herman Glazier, the genteel, soft-spoken veteran counsel and administrative assistant to seven governors to work with his transition team. Glazier, now 73, is considered the most knowledgeable person in the state in the internal operation of the governor's office.

When Mabus was elected four years ago, Glazier, knowing his services were no longer wanted around the governor's office, packed his bags and moved with his wife to Louisville, Ky., ostensibly kicking the dust of Mississippi off his shoes forever.

That didn't last very long. In August, 1988, he moved back to Mississippi. Yes, to Louisville, Miss.

Glazier couldn't sit around and not do something governmentally related. So in February, 1989 he started working part-time for the Mississippi Technology Transfer Center at the Stennis Space Center in Hancock County.

Always popular around the Legislature, Glazier was paid an unusual honor by lawmakers, who by law in 1990 named a room for him at the Stennis Space Center.

Glazier won't say if he will take a job on Fordice's staff when the 57-year-old Vicksburg businessman takes office in mid-January as the first Republican governor of Mississippi since Adelbert Ames. The former Union general resigned from office in 1874, just ahead of certain impeachment.

Since Glazier is over 70, it would take a special dispensation from the state Personnel Board for him to be hired. Meantime, however, Glazier says he hasn't been asked.

Fordice's other key persons on his transition team are Jackson business executive Liles Williams, the former 4th District GOP congressional candidate; Andy Taggart, a bright young Jackson attorney who served as a top state GOP staffer in the 1980s; and Clarke Reed, of Greenville, the longtime pillar of the Mississippi Republican Party who served for 10 years as state party chairman and later national GOP committeeman.

Williams, who was one of Fordice's closest campaign advisers, works for wealthy electric construction company executive Stuart C. Irby Jr., a major contributor to the Fordice campaign. A hard-core conservative, Williams is remembered as the Moral Majority-backed candidate for Congress in 1981 who was upended by Democrat Wayne Dowdy in a major upset.

Reed had been Fordice's principal campaign fund-raiser, putting together much of the $800,000 chest that Fordice ended up spending in winning the state's gubernatorial prize. That was only a fourth of the $3.3 million Mabus shelled out.

Fordice had originally put $115,000 of his own money into his campaign, but that is now going to be repaid from contributions. Reed said last week the campaign will wind up "not owing a dime, and what's more we won't owe any obligations to anyone."

Among others who have a part in the Fordice transition team are state Rep. Ed Buelow of Vicksburg, the arch-conservative Republican lawmaker who has become a top lieutenant of House Speaker Tim Ford, and Clovis Williams, a field man for Republican U.S. Sen. Trent Lott, who in years past has been connected with right-wing causes.

In his first appointment to a top job in his administration, Fordice quickly named Vicksburg-Warren County Industrial developer Jimmy Heidel to become director of the Department of Economic and Community Development, replacing the controversial J. Mac Holliday.

Heidel, a one-time football star at Ole Miss and later with the New Orleans Saints, is highly regarded in state economic development circles. Significantly, Heidel was the choice of many state developers for the DECD job when Mabus brought in Holliday from South Carolina in 1988.

If the choice of Heidel as the state's top economic developer is representative of the kind of people Fordice is going to bring on board then the rank outsider who was elected governor won't do half bad.

THE PEOPLE'S BUSINESS

A Weekly Editorial
From Mississippi Economic Council

Will it be the dawn of an old era?

On Nov. 5, with the election of Kirk Fordice as Mississippi's first Republican Governor since reconstruction, the people of Mississippi said loudly and clearly they were ready for change.

But, in what direction? Do we move forward on pro-business issues, or backward?

The defeat of Ray Mabus, a once-popular incumbent Governor, drives home the realization that the people of our state really do have the power, and the responsibility, to decide.

Indeed, we have a better chance of passing pro-business legislation now than at any time during the past decade.

Working together we can make issues like reform of the state budget, tort reform, the environment, efficiency in government, and the rebuilding of our state's infrastructure priority concerns of the 1992 legislative session.

But, we have to let the Governor-elect and the Legislature know what we want, and then hold them accountable for the success or failure of our legislative agenda.

And, because of redistricting, state legislators will be held responsible for their votes sooner than many of them might have hoped.

Most experts agree that House and Senate members, still exhausted and in debt from weeks of campaigning, will have to run for reelection in little more than a year.

This means that they have a little more than a year to prove their worth to the electorate. And, Governor-Elect Fordice is in a better position than most to appreciate the costs of legislative paralysis on the political fortunes of a sitting governor. He is not likely to put up with a "do nothing" Legislature for long before going to the people for help.

The odds for the passage of significant pro-business legislation are in our favor. So, voters what will it be? A new beginning for Mississippi, or the dawn of an old era?

Should Veteran Administration Hospitals be opened to the public?

"No. They can't take care of the veterans now. It's hard now to get an appointment, sometimes taking two or three months. If they open to the public the service will be even worse."

Clifford Carroll
Bay St. Louis

"No. I think they should be strictly for use by veterans. They (veterans) have their own special needs and the hospitals should continue to serve them."

Janet Barnett

"Yes, they should be opened to anyone, so that medical services could be better provided to all of the public. There are a lot of people who can not afford a private hospital. The hospitals should be incorporated into the charity system."

Jennifer Dunn
Bay St. Louis

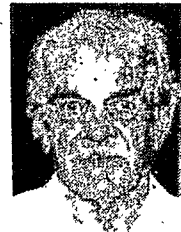

"I think to the poor people the hospitals should be opened, because as you know, just about all the charity hospitals in Mississippi have closed down."

Bay St. Louis boards Amtrak passenger route

BY TRACI BONNEY
Bay St. Louis city council members heeded the cry of "All aboard!" Tuesday and voted to support a local stop for Amtrak's anticipated passenger train route.

David Marquar with the Southern Rapid Rail Transit

Commission told the council the city had been chosen as one of two Mississippi stops on the train's New Orleans-to-Mobile run. He then asked the council for a resolution that the city will do whatever is needed to create the stop.

Mayor Edward Favre said the initial requirements include a 600-foot ramp, a wheelchair lift and a public telephone.

The council voted unanimously to support the creation of the stop, receiving applause from the audience.

Favre then asked for and received council authorization to negotiate with CSX Railroad for the city to obtain the old railroad depot off Central Avenue. Favre said he would work to obtain the depot through lease, purchase or donation.

Marquar told the council the New Orleans-Mobile run is tentatively scheduled to start in April 1992, and a Los Angeles-Jacksonville, Fla., run is planned to start in October 1992.

He added that tickets for the Amtrak route will not be sold in Bay St. Louis, but will be available at Edgewater Mall in Biloxi.

TV talk

A DIFFERENT VIEW

By Traci Bonney

Why do we talk to inanimate objects?

Doc wrote his column recently about electronic technology advances that have given us "talking" cars, cameras and other devices.

I don't own any such critter, but I do have a radio and access to a television. While they don't "talk" to me, but simply transmit what is broadcast to them, that doesn't stop me from talking to them.

It makes some sense to talk to a child, a pet or even a plant. Those things respond to you. (Yes, plants do respond to you — ask my friend Aracely.)

But to talk to a TV? I was watching WKRP in Cincinnati the other night — the old one, not the new version — and the television wasn't giving me a consistently clear picture. There was probably some bad weather somewhere interfering with the signal.

I can deal with weather interference, but the timing of the disturbances was absolutely rotten. I'd hear the set-up for a joke, but miss the punchline, or hear the punchline, but miss the set-up.

So, what did I do? I treated the TV like a misbehaving child.

"Stop that!" I exclaimed, wagging a finger at the television set. When it didn't stop that, I rose from my chair and advanced toward the set in a threatening manner.

The TV wasn't impressed. It continued to scramble the picture and sound, like a kid sticking his tongue out at me.

I took the next logical step. I gently hit the top of the TV, and when that didn't work I grabbed the antenna and moved it around — kind of like giving a child a light tap on the head to get his attention, then twisting his ear a little when the tap doesn't do the trick.

The TV finally settled down and I was able to enjoy the rest of the show, but I couldn't help but laugh at myself for scolding an inanimate object.

We do stuff like that all the time — fuss at the TV, cuss at the car when it breaks down or stalls, urge the toaster to hurry up, gripe at the coffeemaker because we think it's too slow, command a runaway ball of yarn to come back....

Now, don't send the men with the white wrap-around jacket after me; you know you do that sort of thing, too.

My question, as I said at the start of this column, is: Why?

I guess we humans have a natural need to communicate. We talk to God, other people, even ourselves.

And when all else fails, we talk to the toaster.

Ammons' portraits reveal hidden beauty

BY JACQUI COCHRAN

Polly McQueen Ammons was quietly working on a pastel drawing of a clown when a small group of shoppers gathered at the window of the Serenity Art Gallery in Bay St. Louis.

Ammons, engrossed in her work, remained visually fixed between the small ceramic statue and the color-filled canvas rendition of the clown's head and shoulders.

The drawing was near completion except for two void areas where normally a pair of gleeful eyes would appear.

"This work...was commissioned by a man as a gift for his wife," Ammons explained. "When the work is completed, it will be his eyes that will peer out from the face of the clown. It will be a portrait."

According to Ammons, her personal philosophy can be described by the words of Dr. John C. Van Dyke, professor of art history at Rutgers University in the late 1800s. "An artist's education and natural bent of mind makes him a seer and if he has any part to play in the human comedy, it is primarily that of a discoverer and revealer of hidden beauties."

Ammons is accepting portraits by appointments through the Serenity Art Gallery. Her prices range from $30 for a charcoal to $75 for a pastel to $150 for an oil sketching.

She does work from photographs though she prefers live sittings. "Photos don't always show bone structure. Depending on the existing light, what appears one way may actually be another."

Ammons is a native of Louisiana. She is referred to as "universalist", adept at working with all mediums and in many styles.

She has taken part in many shows throughout her life, and her works can be found in public and private collections throughout the world.

She has worked as a street artist in the New Orleans French Quarter and conducted classes for Girl Scout troops, the Veterans Administration Hospital and the Orleans Parish Prison.

In 1971, she received an honorarium for conducting a three-day art workshop for a National Convention of Educators from church affiliated universities. She is listed in "Who's Who in Art and Antiques," published in Cambridge, England, and more recently in 1980, was nominated as an honorary member of "The Accademia Italia delle Arti e del Lavoro," Parma, Italy, one of the oldest art schools in the world.

Ammons can be contacted through Serenity Art Gallery at 467-3061. At this time the Serenity Gallery is showing two of her most recently completed portraits, one of which is of Bay St. Louis Mayor Eddie Favre.

COOKING UP A STORM

By Katy McGuire
Caire

We all have our own special Thanksgiving traditions, don't we? And woe be to anyone who dares to alter that mince pie recipe or the turkey dressing formula or what have you!

Hence, I'll refrain from telling you how I cook my turkey—as a matter of fact, I don't cook the Thanksgiving bird these days; I leave that to the younger members of the family!

Moreover, I won't presume to tell you what sort of stuffing (dressing) that noble bird should have, as you may prefer sausage or cornbread or some other sort, but we opt for the old time and oh so good oyster dressing. Most of our clan, in fact, would just as soon skip the turkey and double up on the oyster stuffing!

(Some years ago, when turkeys had just become more available around the seasons, not only the holidays, I decided one sultry summer day to put a turkey into the oven and exit the kitchen, happily anticipating all the easy summer meals I'd have from the leftovers.

("No way, no way" as the saying goes. The turkey, done to a glistening turn, and accompanied by tasty side dishes, elicited only indignant glances from my husband and young sons, who demanded in unison: "Where's the oyster stuffing?" As I said at the time, anyone else could just cook a turkey!")

I learned from that incident, and now my oyster stuffing, or dressing, serves me well in many other ways as well—as an accompaniment to baked chicken or chicken breasts or pork chops; stuffed into oyster shells or ramekins, as a filling for paté shells, large or small according to the occasion, and even as topping for toast bits on the hors d'oeuvre tray, and there are seldom leftovers when the tray goes around.

Here's:

OLD SOUTH OYSTER DRESSING

Approximately 2 loaves (stale) French bread (3 cups dry)
3 dozen oysters, chopped as you like, reserving their liquor
3 large onions, cut fine
1 rib celery, cut fine
1/4 tsp. minced garlic
1/2 bunch parsley, chopped fine

2 eggs
Dash of sage, and of thyme to your taste

First, of course, break the stale French bread up into small pieces (chunks or cubes) and set to soak in a little stock or broth or water, but not too wet, please. Squeeze dry after a few minutes.

Meanwhile, in a heavy pan, saute the onions in butter until transparent, adding the garlic as well. Add the oysters, cut into small pieces, along with the celery and parsley, and simmer for several minutes or so. Turn the fire off.

Add the bread (squeezed dry) to the oyster mixture seasoning with salt, pepper and cayenne to your taste. Add the sage, judiciously, as a little goes a very long way; too much overpowers!

Beat the eggs and add to the whole mixture. If it looks too moist, put it back on the fire and cook a little longer; if it's too dry, moisten it with broth or to the consistency you wish. Stuff some into the turkey, and place the remainder in a baking dish, mixing with a bit of the turkey juices and "bake a short while"—according to the old recipe—in a moderate 350 degree oven. You may, of course, pack it all into the turkey, if you prefer.)

South Central Bell, Jolly Rogers Printing offer customers new convenience

South Central Bell customers now have the option of paying their monthly telephone bills at Jolly Rogers Printing, 837 Hwy. 90 in Bay St. Louis.

Customers who choose this method of payment will be charged 50 cents for each payment to cover Jolly Rogers Printing's handling costs and an additional 25 cents if the customer does not have his bill at the time of payment.

"In addition to the convenience, this new service will offer savings to those customers who ordinarily purchase money orders so they can make their payments by mail," commented Allyson Keller, owner of Jolly

"This plan reflects South Central Bell's commitment to meeting the needs of its customers," Stewart said.

Local painter 'bites' into etching

Special to the Echo
BY T.H. TOUPS

California artist Amber King has called Bay St. Louis home for just over a year. In that short time, she has drawn appreciative notice from the community for her work in unusual art forms.

Her paintings, etchings and medieval icons have added another interesting ingredient to the Bay's artistic potpourri. Though she is primarily a painter, King explained that she became interested in etching as a natural extension of her work with line drawing. (The word etching is derived from the Dutch term "etzen," which means "bite" or "bitten.")

The process involves coating a metal plate with an acid-resistant ground. The ground, a waxy substance, is then drawn upon with a sharp stylus, exposing thin lines of bare metal.

After the drawing is completed, the plate is immersed in an acid bath which eats away the exposed metal. The ground is removed and the plate is then ready for printing.

The plate is carefully inked and placed in contact with a piece of paper. Plate and paper are forced against each other in a special press and a print is produced.

Each print requires that the plate be completely cleaned and re-inked and thus no two prints are ever exactly alike. The amount of ink on the plate, the pressure of the press and even the type of paper used can introduce subtle differences in the finished print.

King said she and Jerry Dixon, owner of Serenity Bookstore and Gallery, are collaborating on a small book about etching. Dixon said the book represents "a wonderful opportunity to work with someone knowledgeable about the craft."

As a gallery owner, he said he understands that paintings are frequently out of many people's price ranges, but that etchings could "make art affordable to everyone."

He said he hopes the book will serve as an educational tool and help expose the community to a unique type of art.

King's work is currently on display at Serenity, 128 1/2 Main Street in Bay St. Louis. Prices on her etchings start at $25.

"Toys for Tots" game scores for local children

Gulfview Elementary School cheerleaders rally on the crowds in support of their favorite team.

County lawmen gathered last Saturday for a rousing game of flag football at the Joe D. McCullough Stadium in a joint effort to gather toys for the Hancock County Doll and Toy Fund.

"It was more than successful," said Investigator Matt Karl of the county sheriff's office. "Just look at the toys."

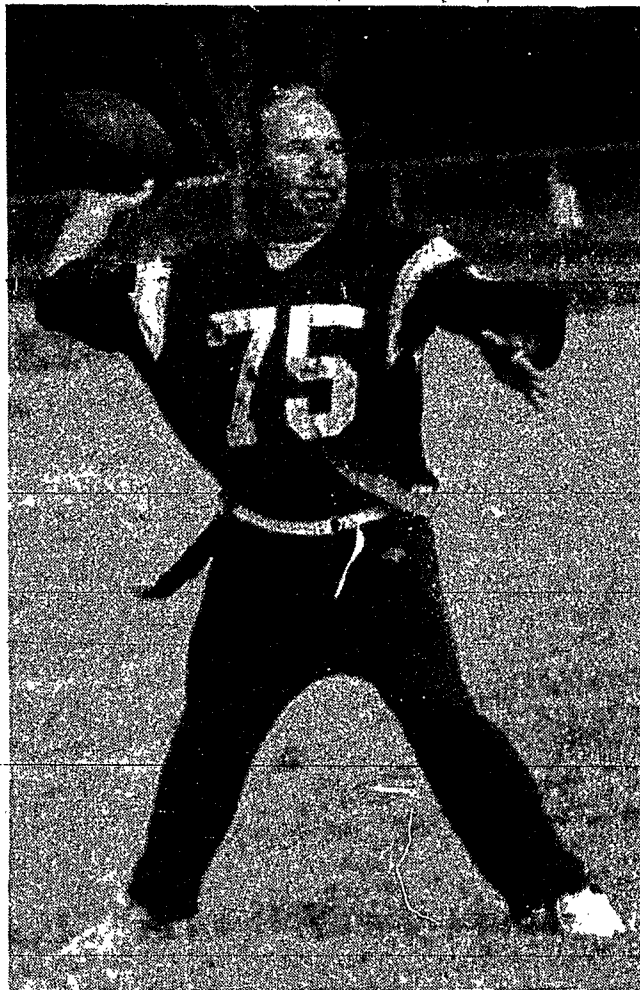

Karl described the day as one that was fun-filled, and the football game itself as riveting.

"The kids from Gulfview really made the day," Karl added. "They opened the game by leading everyone in singing the National Anthem. They had cheerleaders for both teams. The Saintsations never stopped signing autographs. It was really great the way the people came out in support."

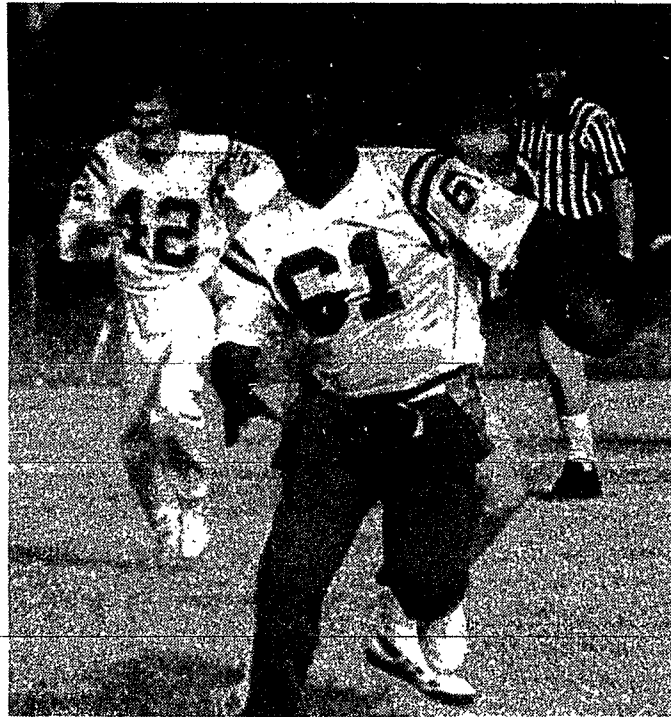

Bags upon bags of toys were stacked in the offices of the sheriff's department. Several deputies helped to load the loot into a van and drive it over to fire chief Lizana's office at the Bay St. Louis Fire Department.

Karl said the Hancock County Lawmen's Association raised $300 in profits from concession stand sales which they were going to donate to the toy fund.

Lizana was all smiles as he directed the men in unloading the toys. "This is so good of the men to come out in support of the children."

The football game ended with the Sheriff's team defeating the BSL Police Department team 40-14, but BSL team coach and officer Don Ocho summed it up best saying, "The real winners of Saturday's game are the kids. All the kids who will have a special Christmas because of the caring shown by the people of this community."

Bay St. Louis Police Department team quarterback, Police Chief Frank McNeil, contemplates game strategy.

Shabazz's skill shines in Yale loss to Cornell

BY TRACI BONNEY
Here's the latest on former St. Stanislaus sports standout Ya-Sin Shabazz, now playing for the Yale Elis:

During Yale's 31-6 loss to Cornell November 9, Shabazz snagged a pass from quarterback Nick Crawford of Tennessee in the endzone for a 27-yard reception and Yale's only touchdown of the day.

Shabazz, a senior at Yale, graduated from St. Stanislaus in 1988. He has played at Yale since his first year, starting in freshman football and moving to the varsity team in his second year. In his junior year, he received All-Ivy honors for his football skills.

Shabazz is studying economics and political science, but his mother said she and he have not discussed in any depth what career he plans to pursue.

FISHIN' Y'ALL

By Jim Maness

It's time to go fishin' y'all. Hey diddle diddle, the cat and the fiddle, the cow jumped over the moon. The little boy laughed to see such a sight and etc., etc., etc.

Fairy tales and far-fetched dreams, that's how I look upon the catch and release program that is being rammed down our throats.

The Georgia Department of Fisheries did a controlled five-year scientific study on 300 trout and red fish. Around 50 percent of the fish caught and released in a controlled environment died. 100 percent of the trout that were gill hooked and released into a controlled environment died.

Men that have fished the waters off coastal Mississippi for 50 and 60 years report that when they catch and release trout they notice many of the released trout floating on the top of the water—dead.

I keep hearing that there are "scientific" studies that show that speckled trout catch and release works. I wonder why these so-called "scientific" studies have not been published in any reputable journal of marine biology. Could it be that these "scientific" studies exist only in fairy land?

Yet our resource is being destroyed based on these fairy land studies. The only solution that I can see is to have the tackle manufacturers develop baits that will only attract legal size fish. This way the under-size fish will know not to bite and will not be caught.

Sometimes the turtle gets carried away in other directions than where to catch fish, but this past week really drove home the absurdity of the catch and release program for specks. The reason for this outburst is that most of the fishermen I talked to this past week were fishing in the bayous and canals and catching 70 to 100 specks.

Out of those 70 to 100 specks some were catching their limit of Mississippi legal size trout, but most were able to keep only about 10 to 15 trout that were big enough to be Mississippi legal size.

Every fisherman I talked to reported seeing dead specks floating in the bayous and canals.

Quite a few fishermen quit early as they felt they did not want to keep killing fish that they could not bring home to eat.

If you just do a little mathematics you can see the magnitude of the destruction. Let's take an average of 85 fish caught. Deduct 15 legal size fish and you get a release of 60 fish. The published death rate for released trout is 50 percent. So 30 fish are killed and wasted for each 15 trout you get to keep. That means 45 dead fish and only 15 are taken home. This is called "conserving the resource?"

Anyway, use red and white bingo, orange mirror lures, and jig rigs that are heavy enough to go just off the bottom, behind a real slow boat, in the bayous and deep canals, to catch the winter run of trout.

Some people are reporting that they are catching trout and reds on live shrimp and about 6 feet under a float.

Please, please, do everything in your power to keep the kill of under-size trout to the bare minimum. This includes only handling the trout with a wet towel, if handling becomes necessary, and setting the hook fast to prevent it from going into the trout gills or gut when you get a strike.

This week's wonderful wise words: Once upon a time in never-never land...

Don't buy that bridge, turtle.

Bay Youth Basketball conducts registration

The Bay Youth Basketball Association will conduct its open registration Saturday, Nov. 23 between 1-3 p.m. at the Bay Middle School.

All interested girls and boys between seven and 12 are required to bring a certified birth certificate and $10 for registration fee.

For additional information about the league, contact Robert (Chops) Williams at 467-9725.

Deer season opens

The gun season on deer is perhaps the most awaited day of the year for state hunters. That season opens Saturday, Nov. 23 and continues through Dec. 1, according to the Department of Wildlife, Fisheries and Parks.

During the nine-day season, hunters may use dogs for hunting deer.

According to conservation enforcement authorities, all deer hunters must wear in full view a minimum of 500 square inches of unbroken, continuous, daylight fluorescent, hunter orange material during all deer seasons, except during the special archery season.

Hunters also are cautioned to get landowner permission before hunting on the lands of another.

Legal shooting hours for deer are one-half hour before sunrise until one-half hour after sunset.

Deer hunters should remember that all persons, except those exempt under state law, are required to purchase a hunting license and have it signed and on their person while hunting.

State law requires all residents and on residents born on or after January 1, 1972 to complete a hunter education course before purchasing a hunting license.

During this first gun season on deer, the bag limit is one buck with antlers visible above the natural hair line per day, not to exceed five during the license year.

State wildlife management areas are subject to special seasons and regulations which may vary from statewide seasons. For information about any of these areas, contact the Department of Wildlife, Fisheries and Parks, P.O. Box 451, Jackson, MS 39205-0451, or call 362-9212.

'Outdoors' explores Mississippi's wetlands

The two types of wetlands found in Mississippi are explored on the next edition of "Mississippi Outdoors," at 7:30 p.m. today on Mississippi ETV.

The program will be rebroadcast at 6:15 a.m. Friday, Nov. 22, and at 5:30 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 23.

Host Melvin Tingle joins MDWFP biologist Jennifer Buchanan of Long Beach and MDWFP environmental coordinator John Burris of Jackson as they explore Gulf Coast tidal marshes at Bayou Portage in Harrison County and Delta inland wetlands in Yazoo County.

Studio guest David Ruple, a MDWFP wetlands biologist from Ocean Springs, brings a marsh into the studio to illustrate the complex ecosystem of the Gulf Coast tidal marsh.

A co-production of the Mississippi Department of Wildlife, Fisheries and Parks and the Mississippi Educational Television Network, "Mississippi Outdoors" is made possible in part by Mississippi Power & Light and International Paper.

HNCE Master Lab opens

Hancock North Central Elementary School recently hosted a VIP Breakfast for Adopt-A-School partners and business leaders of the community.

The purpose was to honor those companies and individuals who play a vital role in the school's success, as well as to show off the school's recent facelift.

One highlight of the morning's activities was a ribbon cutting ceremony which marked the opening of the Master Laboratory on the HNCE campus.

The laboratory is designed to provide students with work stations of hand-on activities for math and science training and enrichment in response to President Bush's America 2000 education program. Utilizing available grant money and funds raised by the community, HNCE spent in excess of $2,800 on materials for the lab.

"As America seeks to restructure its educational system to more effectively meet the needs of today's students, we are striving to keep Hancock County Schools in the forefront," stated Denise Wilkinson, assistant principal. "Plans are on the drawing board for expanding the lab to include the use of an effort to prepare students for a changing world.

FEAR ALMOST COST ME EVERYTHING I LOVE!

Like most people my age, I knew all the warning signs of cancer, but fear kept me from going in for a checkup. I was more afraid of knowing the truth than I was of cancer itself.

Now, I feel so foolish. My procrastination and fear almost cost me my life and everything I love. But I was lucky.

My doctor at Shidell Memorial Hospital, once I did go in, carefully explained that early detection and prompt treatment offer the best hope for a full recovery. Cancer, if ignored and untreated, will continue to invade and destroy healthy tissue, increasing your risk and the possibility of complications.

The Cancer Center at Shidell Memorial Hospital uses a multidisciplinary approach to bring together all the people and resources needed to successfully diagnose and treat cancer of any kind.

Skilled physicians, specially-trained nurses and experienced staff utilize the newest most advanced technology and techniques to provide services and programs designed to make living with cancer easier on both patients and their families.

If you would like to know more about preventing, detecting and treating cancer, please call or write today.
